PETITION FOR INJUNCTION

Professing to Make No Sales, Liquor House Solicitors, Arrested, Asks Federal Courts to Act.

McAlester, Ok., May 31.—Notices were served on Sheriff John A. Harrison, county Judge W. R. Higgins and County Attorney T. R. Dean last night by the United States Marshal of an application for an injunction brought by A. H. Dreyfus, to be heard at McAlester Wednesday.

Dreyfus, a resident of Kansas City has been in Oklahoma ever since statehood, soliciting orders for interstate shipment of liquors, professing to make no sales, deliveries or collections. He has been indicted nearly 100 times by the Pittsburg county grand jury, is under bail aggregating $30,000 and has been twice convicted in the county court and sentenced to imprisonment, from which judgments he has appealed.

Dreyfus was arrested last week on eighteen new counts. He is now seeking to perpetually enjoin the county and state officers from interfering with the exercise of what he contends is his constitutional right as a citizen of another state.
He contends that the Oklahoma constitution violates the interstate commerce provisions of the Federal constitution. He says he will carry the matter to the supreme court of the United States.

SENATOR ALDRICH ELECTED CHAIRMAN

Representative Vreeland is Chosen
Vice Chairman of Currency Commission.

Washington, May 31.—The Currency commission appointed yesterday by Vice President Fairbanks and Speaker Cannon, under the terms of the Aldrich-Vreeland bill, held its first meeting today, and while the meeting was only for the purpose of organization there was a general discussion of plans, and it can be stated that if the outline submitted by Senator Aldrich is perfected by the work of the commission the country will be given the benefit of such a thorough investigation and complete an exposition of currency and banking that it has never before received.

The commission organized by electing Senator Aldrich chairman and Representative Vreeland vice chairman, thus recognizing in the two elective officers the co-authors of the law under which the commission was appointed.

Arthur Shelton, clerk of the senate committee on Finance, was chosen secretary of the commission, and it was agreed that those members should be permitted to designate an assistant secretary, but he was not named today.

Senator Aldrich expressed the opinion that the country would expect from the commission a very complete presentation of the financial subject, based upon investigation to be made not only in the United States, but also in the financial centers of Europe, and no dissenting voice was heard in the entire membership of eighteen representatives and senators.

It was the general opinion that the commission would continue its existence for at least three or four years, and the opinion was expressed that the investigation would prove as important for this country as did that of the Old Bullion commission for Great Britain.

The discussion today resulted in the appointment of a committee of six to formulate a plan for action, and as first appointed the committee consisted of Senators Aldrich, Hale and Teller and Representatives Vreeland, Burton and Padgett.

Senator Teller subsequently declined the office, and Senator Bailey was substituted in his place. The committee will meet in New York about the middle of June, and will prepare its plans to be presented to a meeting of the full committee to be held at some seaside resort in New England about the 15th of July.

17,500 RETURN TO WORK TODAY

ST. LOUIS WILL RE-EMPLOY MOST OF WORKERS LAID OFF IN DEPRESSION.

REVIVAL OF BUSINESS BEGINS

One St. Louis Concern Places Orders for $1,000,000 in Supplies—Re-employment Day June 1.

St. Louis, Mo., May 31.—As a result of the National Prosperity Association and its employment day plan, tomorrow, June 1, will see 17-500 men back at work in St. Louis, men who lost their positions or were laid off during the recent financial and business depression. On this number possibly 2,000 were employed after the association sent out its request to the different manufacturers and corporations May 1, asking them to observe Employment Day, many of the firms acting at once on the suggestion.

The executive committee of the association has taken the plan up with railroads and other corporations out of St. Louis and many have agreed to try it. The number of men to be re-employed outside of St. Louis has not been learned.

An inquiry into the local business conditions during the month of May (since the founding of the organization), was finished yesterday. The answers to the questions put by the association indicate a remarkable increase in business and a rapid recovery from the recent money stringency.

The questions were:
"Is the country regaining confidence? Is the number of employes increasing? What do you hear from farmers and other towns?"

Manufacturers of this country will find in their mail tomorrow orders aggregating over $1,000,000 from a single St. Louis house. Simmons Har-ware Company sent the orders with a note saying that the orders are to give the manufacturers a basis for re-employing their idle men.

Joint Normal.

Weleetka, Ok., May 31.—A joint normal of the teachers of Okmulgee and Ofuskee counties and those of the Creek and Seminole Nations will be held in Weleetka, beginning June 1 and ending on June 26. A strong faculty has been provided for, consisting of a conductor and three instructors.

The school board and commercial club have guaranteed the managers of the normal that private homes have been arranged for 200 teachers.

County Seat Elections.

Guthrie, Ok., May 31.—The returns from three county seat elections in the state have reached Gov. Haskell's office, showing that in Grant County Medford won over Pond Creek and Jefferson by 250 plurality; in Wagoner County Wagoner City defeated Coweta by 170, and in McIntosh county Chetotah defeated Eufaula by 63.
Pond Creek, Wagoner and Eufaula are the present county seats.

Man Drowned Near McCloud.

Shawnee, Ok., May 31.—Dale Mc-Cloud was caught by the Canadian river flood near McCloud yesterday afternoon and drowned. Three others who were with him escaped by grasping to overhanging tree limbs.

Senate Bill No. 105

AN ACT

To Amend Sections One, Two and Five of Senate Substitute Bill Number Eleven, passed and approved December Twenty-First, Nineteen Hundred Seven, by the First Legislature of Oklahoma, Entitled "An Act Providing for the Removal of All Those Causes, Both Civil and Criminal, Transferred From the Courts of the Territory of Oklahoma and the United States Courts in the Indian Territory to the Courts of this State, Including Transcript of the Records of Mayors; and United States Commissioners Courts in that Part of the State Formerly Known as the Indian Territory Which Would Have Been Properly Triable in Any Other Court of Any County or District of the State Had Such Suit or Proceeding Been Commenced After the Admission of This State Into The Union." An Emergency Declared Therein.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF OKLAHOMA: SECTION 1: That sections one, two and five of the Senate Substitute Bill No. 11. Passed and approved December 21st, 1907, by the First Legislature of Oklahoma, entitled "An Act providing for the Removal of all those causes, both civil and criminal, transferred from the courts of the Territory of Oklahoma and the United States Courts in the Indian Territory, to the Courts of this State, including a transcript of the records of the Mayors and United States Commissioners in that part of the State formerly known as the Indian Territory, which would have been properly triable in any other court of any county or district of the State had such suit or proceeding been commenced after the admission of this State into the Union," be amended to read as follows:

"SECTION: That all those civil cases transferred from the courts of the Territory of Oklahoma and the United States Courts in the Indian Territory to the courts of this State, as transferred by Acts of Congress and accepted by the Constitution, which would have been properly triable in any court or county or district of this State had such suit or proceeding been commenced after the admission of this State into the Union, including records formerly belonging to the United States Commissioners Courts and all papers of Mayors of cities and incorporated towns having and exercising ex-officio jurisdiction as United States Commissioners in that part of the State formerly known as the Indian Territory, that may be in the hands of the clerks of the various district courts of that portion of the State may, including probate matters, by any person having a substantial interest therein, on petition verified by the affidavit of the applicant or his attorneys of record filed with the Judge or Clerk of the Court where such cause is pending within sixty days after the passage and approval of this Act be transferred to the proper courts of such county or district and that all books, records, pending cases, papers, proceedings, liens, judgments and executions pending in a Justice of the Peace Court of any county are hereby transferred to some justice of the Peace Court of the county in which, if originally brought in said court, the defendant lives, or if the defendant be a non-resident, then to the county where the plaintiff, or the defendant has property, and when such records are transferred as above provided for, said court shall have full and complete jurisdiction of all cases and proceedings so transferred. Provided, that all transfers of papers, books, proceedings, made or attempted to be made by mayors of incorporated towns to the proper courts are hereby legalized and made valid.

SECTION 2: That all criminal cases transferred from the courts of the Territory of Oklahoma and the United States Courts in the Indian Territory to the courts of this State as transferred by Acts of Congress and accepted by the Constitution which would have been properly triable in any other court of any county or district of this State had such suit or proceedings been commenced after the admission of this State into the Union may, upon the application of the defendant therein, filed with the Clerk of the District Court within ninety days after the passage and approval of this Act be transferred to the proper court of such county or district for trial.

SECTION 3: That whenever the judgment debtor lives in a county different from the court having charge of the judgment and the plaintiff desires the same to become a lien upon the property of said judgment debtor, it shall then be the duty of the Court, upon the request of any party interested in said judgment to file with the Judge of the said Court having jurisdiction in which the judgment debtor resides, a certified copy of said judgment and when the same is filed in said court it shall become a lien upon the property of the judgment debtor, "not exempt under the law."

SECTION 2: For the preservation of the peace and safety of the public, an emergency is hereby declared to exist for the immediate passage of this Act and the same shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage and approval, and it is so enacted.

HENRY S. JOHNSTON,

President Pro Tempore of the Senate.

WM. H. MURRAY,

Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Approved March 12th, 1908.

C. N. HASKELL,

Governor of the State of Oklahoma.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure it with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a tea-spoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

If one feels dull and spiritless, in the spring or early summer, they call it "Spring Fever." But there is no fever—usually. It is the after effect of our winter habits. The nerves are mostly at fault. Tired, worn-out nerves leave us languid, lifeless and without spirit or ambition. A few doses of Dr. Shoop's Restorative will absolutely and quickly change all of these depressing symptoms. The Restorative of course won't bring you back to full health in a day or two, but it will do enough in 48 hours to satisfy you that the remedy is reaching that "tired spot." Druggists everywhere are advising its use as a splendid and prompt general tonic. It gives more vim and more spirit to the spoonful than any other known nerve or constitutional tonic. It sharpens a failing appetite, aids digestion, frees sluggish livers and kidneys, and brings new life, strength and ambition. Test it a few days and be convinced.

WE CARRY JUST THE HOUSE, city lot or farm on our lists that will meet your requirements, no matter what sort of property you seek. In addition we can sell you what you select upon almost any reasonable terms you may name. Your trip to this office will be a pleasant and profitable one.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured, by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

plane, that they might be in a position to advance measures for peace and disarmament, fortifying their arguments by their own observations. The utmost secrecy was to be maintained, because in the meantime the Chinese armada might have sailed. In case it had not, the secret would be given out and search begun actively for the missing Norma and her distinguished passengers; but in any event British support would have been assured.

Bevins, foreseeing the difficulty of his task, asked and obtained permission to invite the British admiral to accompany him, the wisdom of which was evidenced. Favored by the difference in time, the speedy Roberts on that very night crossed the Atlantic and deposited letters to secret service agents in London, instructing them to obtain positive knowledge of where the king might be found the following evening. On her return she conveyed Fields and the Dreadnought to the key, preparatory to the momentous journey.

That flight which was again to disturb the thrones of Europe was accomplished without incident, but not without difficulty. The Roberts swooped down from the heights of air, untended save by her, to find spread between the earth and sky a blanket of fog, thick and impenetrable. Into it she slowly dropped, groping this way and that over the unsuspecting city, whose sounds came up to her but gave no hint as to locality. Aimlessly she wandered here and there in the murk, taking desperate chances in her quest. Suddenly something loomed directly below the open port, from which Bevins was leaning and peering down, and only a quick change of course avoided a collision. Fields joined him, and identified the dome of Saint Paul's. It was a narrow escape, but enabled them to set their course and gain the deserted greens of Saint James' Park, where Bevins was lowered by ropes to the earth.

He stood for a moment while the bulk of the radiplane and the Dreadnought which she was carrying rose into the air and disappeared from view. He felt alone in an unfriendly city, but set his teeth and stumbled out to a street, where he enlisted the services of a constable and a hansom, and was conveyed to the Cecil, whose lighted doors stared out upon the fog washed courtyard leading from the Strand. His message of the previous night had met with instant response, and no one would have suspected that the two men who lounged in the hotel entrance in seeming idle conversation, smoking and watching passersby, were important agents in the hands of fate. As nonchalantly as they had met they parted, one returning within doors, and the other sauntering back to the waiting hansom which was to convey the admiral to the hippodrome and a daring audience with the king.

The fog deadened bells of the ancient city marked only an hour's time before he had emerged and returned to the park entrance, where the wondering driver was dismissed, shaking his head and marveling at the idiosyncrasies of the Americans, who seemed never to have a reasonable destination. Once more the grim old admiral limped through the paths to his rendezvous and gave the whistled signal to his waiting craft, which during his absence had released its burden near Westminster bridge and above Blackfriars, where her position would be both accessible and impressive to the people on the following morning.

Up into the air for a short distance, then down again in hovering silence, the Roberts went, and landed her commander in the garden behind Buckingham. The fog was no longer an enemy; for now she remained motionless only a few feet above the roof which had sheltered so many kings and queens. This nearness aided the quick visit of the British officer to his sovereign when called, and prevented delay when the monarch and his companions appeared for their journey. The fog had become an ally.

Those who sit upon England's throne may never show surprise—so runs tradition—but on this night an expression of astonishment burst from one of her sovereigns as he entered the yawning portal of the strange machine. Up to that moment neither he nor his companions had entertained a belief that the American engine of destruction could be other than some powerful, speedy, and invincible submarine. Now in the cloak of fog and darkness, within sound of the roar of traffic past his palace gates, in the midst of his own garden, he found a formidable monster with undreamed-of might.

With his companions he was ushered through a shadowy companionway without hearing the stealthy closing of the port through which he came. Nor was he aware as he entered the brilliantly lighted drawing room amidships, that already he had been lifted into the light of stars and was flying through space over the Atlantic ocean at a speed of 600 miles an hour. It was incomprehensible that before his first questions had been answered the ribbon of the channel had been passed and Ireland had lost itself in the eastern horizon. Gravely interested and steadily courteous, he inspected the radiplane under the guidance of the inventor and his daughter, who made known to him its capabilities, and it was his own suggestion that the trip might be extended to the Chesapeake, where the fleet of the Lion was moored. For once the first lord of the admiralty showed eagerness, and was visibly pleased when Bevins said there could be no objection to the king's desire.

Between the inventor and the king, as they sped westward, there was established a friendship. Gruff and querulous "Old Bill" Roberts, democratic to the core, and respecting men only for their real worth, found in this quiet, self-contained guest one whom he could admire. And to the monarch the scientist was the most interesting man he had ever met, considering that his past achievements had gained world-wide fame, to be capped with the surprising creation of this aerial masterpiece. From time to time he glanced at the stately American girl, who sat silently beside the prime minister. He found himself puzzled by the brooding wistfulness of her eyes and speculating as to what yearning had mirrored its sadness in their depths.

Not until Bevins had recounted the tale of the western battle did the king realize that on occasion the supple hands of the girl might become things of steel, and that within her was a soul of flame. She begged permission to retire before the admiral had fairly begun his story, and was not there to hear that stern old veteran of the seas conclude with the trenchant statement: "It was not I, your majesty, who won the battle that day; it was that slip of a girl who led the cohorts of the Eagle down upon them. It was she who clasped the flag in her arms when the battle was done."

The men in the room leaned forward in silence when Bevins ended. They had been carried away into the realm of imagination to picture the stirring clash of mighty arms and valorous deeds. Before anyone could speak an officer appeared at the door.

"I have to report that we are above the Chesapeake, sir," he said to his superior.

It was the breaking of reverie, the sherry cell from the past to the present, and the king rose expectantly. The lights of the Roberts flashed out and left them in darkness. The ports below opened, and they grouped themselves round them, with night glasses tendered by their host.

The waning moon lighted up the quiet reaches far beneath, and outlined in diminutive spectral shapes the fleet of anchored ships. The great machine swooped lower until they could descry the telescoped funnels, from whose ragged mouths came no curl of smoke, and the bared decks whose lengths were paced only by men of the watch. Aside from these there was no sign of life. A mighty squadron, bereft of power, floating on still waters beneath a dying moon! If America wished to prove her supremacy, the lesson was complete. The royal shoulders outlined against the light of the port gave one great shudder of sorrow, and turned away. When the shutters closed and the lights returned, the king was resting his brow upon his hand, the lord of the admiralty was standing with tightly clasped hands, and the prime minister was leaning with folded arms against the polished frame of the port through which he had viewed Briton's vanquished pride.

"If your majesty pleases," the voice of the American admiral broke into the quietude, "I have promised to land Miss Roberts and Admiral Fields before our return. With your consent we shall stop in the place chosen for all our visits to Washington, in the outskirts."

The monarch still thinking of the silent fleet, assented, and the radiplane swept downward at a tangent to the lonely field. Again the lights went out, the port opened, and the slight shock of landing was felt. Almost instantly a man in uniform stood before it and saluted the admiral, who started back in surprise.

"A message for you, sir, from the president and secretary of the navy, with requests that it be opened and read immediately," the officer announced.

Bevins returned to the light of hood and read:

"Kindly report to the White House immediately upon arrival. In case his majesty, the king of England, has returned with you, which we earnestly hope is the case, present to him the hearty good will of the president and people of the United States of America, and extend to him our urgent invitation either to accompany you, with those who may be his companions, or await the return of a committee of invitation and reception, which will wait upon him as soon as

It becomes definitely known that he is with you.

"In case he did not accompany you on your return, it will be necessary for you to return to London at once, inviting him to a conference of great importance, which is occasioned by the exigencies of events which have taken place to-night. In any case you will report to us immediately for instructions."

Puzzled by this explicit message, Bevins paused for a moment, with his brows drawn down in thought, and then returned to the drawing room, where a shaded light rested in the center of the table round which his guests were seated. With a brief explanation he handed the order to the king, who calmly placed his glasses upon his high, fine nose, leaned across the table, and perused it.

Everything of the night was strange and unusual. A few hours ago he had gone to a theater to rest his nerves, and here he was across the Atlantic, informally, and learning new lessons or receiving astounding revelations with each beat of time. He had gone thus far, and would go through to the end, and would go informally.

"We prefer to accompany you," was all the reply he made, and the party filed out into the night, where two big automobiles brought for this very emergency were in waiting. They whirled away to the White House, where they were met in the blue room by the president and his immediate advisers. The king himself established the basis of etiquette by extending his hand to the president and his companions. He assumed no deportment of royalty; but as the first gentleman of England greeted the first gentleman of America.

"Your majesty," the president began, "the time is at hand when the United States has no further object in concealing the power at her command; the sole cause of concealment, that of meeting the Chinese fleet, having been nullified by the action of that country itself. China has broken her alliance with Japan, is ready to make such overtures as we wish for peace, and is dispersing her fleet."

The president paused for a moment, and looked at those around him. The king, steadily watching him, was impressed with his simple dignity, and read aright the great and high purpose that shone in his eyes. Once more he resumed:

"It has come to this issue, your majesty, much sooner than I had expected; but events which make for war and peace move fast. They are in the hands of God Almighty, and not of rulers. I desired this interview, because you can assist me in what I have to do, and for which I believe I am a mere instrument in the hands of a power before whom all must bow."

"And I am honored," the sovereign instantly responded.

With his officials he was conducted to the president's private apartments, where they were followed by the secretary of state and the secretary of the navy.

The king looked round the room, which he had entered on but one other occasion, long years before, when as a prince and without hope of a throne he had been received by a former president of the United States. How many men had occupied it since then, and how few of them had left any great individual mark on the world's history! He took the proffered seat and waited for the president to speak, only half comprehending that he was entering upon one of the most important conferences that the world had ever known.

"Your majesty and gentlemen," the president began in his low, finely modulated voice, "I told you I wished your assistance. I need more than that; I want your advice. I have been a man with a dream, and that you may know how much it has meant to me, I must tell you something of myself. I come of a race that for generations has given its blood for country. It was almost obliterated in the wars of the revolution and of 1812. In the great civil war there were five men in my family, a father and four older brothers, the youngest a mere lad, who went to war as volunteers. Some of them never returned. My father was brought back shattered by suffering to die in my mother's arms. The lad that had gone out with his drum came back to drag out only a few wretched months of suffering."

"My home was on the borderland, where men fought backward and forward across our fields." He paused for a moment as if the memory of his childhood was too bitter for recapitulation, then went bravely on: "In those years the sight of ghastly wounds and cruel death was before me sometimes daily, but never far removed. When peace came there was nothing left to my mother but her ravaged farm, her bitter poverty, and her one boy. Oh, it was a nightmare, gentlemen, that never dimmed. It was a memory that never left me, as, hard working, poorly clad and sometimes hungry, I grew to manhood. My mother went, as did thousands of other widows made by war, to an early grave, prematurely worn out by work and grief."

The floodgates were down at last. His repression was going, and he rose to his feet behind his desk trembling in every fiber, and with white, quivering lips. In the stillness of the room he stood thus for an instant; then his teeth suddenly came together with a click and his fist came down upon the table in one quick, hard blow of emphasis.

"Do you wonder," he said, "that I swore to give my life to peace? Is it strange that I who have suffered have taken unusual means to keep others from suffering as I and mine have? I have invited you here not as the president of a nation, but as man

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, but they are symptoms only of a certain specific nerve disease—nothing else. It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop to the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brings these serious and dangerous ailments to their proper end. Without the original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had. For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We mail and check daily recommendations.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

With Only Mayor and Five Aldermen Present—Considerable Business Was Transacted.

The city council met in regular session last night, Mayor Geo. Harrison, presiding. Aldermen present were Simms, Hill, Little, Crowder and Evans; absent, Haynes, Shirley and Sutton. Minutes of May 18, and 21st read and approved.

Accounts to the amount of about $30.00 were allowed and warrants ordered drawn on Treasury to pay the same.

Some correspondence was read in answer to advertisement of the city for estimates on establishing a street and sidewalk grade. Some asking as high as $25.00 per day to do the work. Engineer Geo. Truitt was present and was asked to make the city an estimate which he will do and report at next Monday night's meeting.

Mayor Geo. Harrison in a lengthy letter vetoed ordinance No. 143 making the mayor's salary $20.00 per month, in doing so Mr. Harrison stated the responsibility of the mayor and the work connected with same was such as to take nearly all his time, and that he should at least have the pay of a clerk in a store or the laborer on a farm and the ordinance as it looked to him was more of a joke than a reality, that he preferred no salary at all to that of $20 per month.

The mayor was given authority to make some disposal of the pump house machinery at the old well.

The report of Police Judge Powers was read and approved.

The contract for the street sprinkler and fire wagon with Joe Landers was approved by the council.

A special committee was appointed to look into the matter of employing a water commissioner for the next twelve months.

The council granted the Ada ice company the use of water at the rate

Wedding Bells.

This morning at 10 o'clock at the Byrd hotel, in the presence of a few most intimate friends, Mr. James W. Dean and Miss Lella Chapman were united in marriage, Rev. E. L. Kirtley officiating. Both have been residents of Ada for a number of years. Mr. Dean, a young practicing attorney moved to Ada about four years ago and has been practicing law since, a member of the firm of Epperson & Dean, and at present is assistant county attorney, and every one who knows him likes him.

Miss Chapman has been living with her relatives the Smiths, who run the Byrd hotel, and Mr. Dean met her while boarding there. She has a sweet gentle disposition, loved by all who know her best and admired by every one. We congratulate Mr. Dean on securing this treasure, and our hand to both with best wishes for a long happy wedded life.

This kind of weather makes one feel one day like a pessimist, and the next like an optimist, reminds one of the old story "yesterday I was a daisy, but today I am, etc."

KILLING AT STRATFORD

Dr. Tyree Shot by Leonard Hyden. Died This Morning.

Dr. Tyree, a practicing physician of Stratford was shot yesterday by Leonard Hyden, son of Whit Hyden in Stratford and died this morning. We have been unable to get all the particulars of this killing but the two men fell out over a doctor's bill and it is claimed Dr. Tyree cursed and abused Hyden several times and yesterday attempted to assault him with a surgeon's knife, and Hyden shot him. Five shots were fired only one taking effect. The Doctor lived until this morning. Hyden was arrested and taken to Pauls Valley, Stratford being in Garvin county in which the shooting occurred, and Pauls Valley the county seat. Both parties are well known and have friends in Ada.

OPERA HOUSE AND LODGE ROOM

Eagles to Erect Handsome Structures on Main Street.

The Eagles are preparing to build an opera house and lodge room on West Main street and plans are under way and the matter will be fully decided on at the meeting tonight. The lots have been contracted for and the buildings will cost between 15 and 25 thousand dollars. This is one of the largest secret orders in Ada and certainly deserve credit for such energy and shows it is composed of energetic and go ahead citizens. We wish them success for no town on earth needs an opera house worse than Ada does.

BASE BALL THIS AFTERNOON.

Ada Cleans Up Ro: by Score of 4 to 1—Jeff Beatty Hurt.

The Roff base ball team came in this morning and played the second nine on their grounds near the compress. It is the same old story, score 4 to 1 in favor of Ada. The game was a good one, in fact, one of the best ever played on the Ada diamond. The Roff team were much larger than the Ada kids, but they found out they were as large as them when it came to playing ball. John Chauncey proved himself a foe in the box and bids fair to become a first-class pitcher.

During the game E. O. Reed and Jeff Beatty run together while running for a ball and both were knocked to the ground. Eb is not hurt but Jeff was knocked senseless and was taken home in a cab. At last account he was getting along all right and it is thought he is not seriously hurt.

MURRAY FOR GOVERNOR

SLOGAN OF BANQUETERS

Guthrie, Ok., May 30.—"Alfalfa Bill Murray for governor in 1911" was the slogan of the banqueters at the lone attending the spread given in honor of the retiring Speaker of the first Oklahoma legislature. There were 100 covers laid. Representative George Whitehurst of Sayer, chairman of the House's democratic caucus, was master of ceremonies. Other than Mr. Murray, Gov. Haskell was the guest of honor.

Mr. Whitehurst launched the first ovation of the evening when he said the occasion was honored by the attendance of two distinguished gentlemen—both the present and the next governors of Oklahoma. All through the toasts reference to Mr. Murray as the state's second executive evoked wild cheering, the climax of which was reached when Gov. Haskell, the last speaker of the evening made reference to Mr. Murray being permitted to reside at the "New Jerusalem" capital site of Oklahoma before his useful life is finished. The governor talked about "Three Years with Bill Murray," including his association with the former Texan in the Sequoyah constitutional convention, the Sequoyah campaign, the Oklahoma constitutional convention, of which Mr. Murray was president and with him as speaker of the first Oklahoma legislature.

FOUND THE CAUSE.

After Six Years of Misery and Wrong Treatment.

John A. Enders, of Robertson Avenue, Pen Argyl, Pa., suffered for six years with stinging pain in the back, violent headaches and dizzy spells, and was assured by a specialist that his kidneys were all right, though the secretions showed a reddish, brick-dust sediment. Not satisfied, Mr. Enders started using Doan's Kidney Pills. "The kidneys began to act more regularly," he says, "and in a short time I passed a few gravel stones. I felt better right away and since then have had no kidney trouble."

Griefs That Die Unspoken.

Read what the singing women—once to ten thousand of the suffering women—tell us, and think of the griefs that die unspoken! Nature is in earnest when she makes a woman; and there are women enough lying in the next churchyard with very commonplace blue slate stones at their head and feet, for whom it was just as true that "all sounds of life assumed one tone of love," as for Letitia Landon, of whom Elizabeth Browning said it; but she could give words to her grief, and they could not—Holmes.

SEVERE HEMORRHOIDS

Sores, and Itching Eczema—Doctor Thought an Operation Necessary—Cuticura's Efficacy Proven.

"I am now 80 years old, and three years ago I was taken with an attack of piles (hemorrhoids), bleeding and protruding. The doctor said the only help for me was to go to a hospital and be operated on. I tried several remedies for months but did not get much help. During this time sores appeared which changed to a terrible itching eczema. Then I began to use Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills, injecting a quantity of Cuticura Ointment with a Cuticura Suppository Syringe. It took a month of this treatment to get me in a fairly healthy state and then I treated myself once a day for three months and, after that, once or twice a week. The treatments I tried took a lot of money, and it is fortunate that I used Cuticura. J. H. Henderson, Hopkinton, N. Y., Apr. 26, 1907."

To Cut Down World's Fuel Bill.
"Less than 25 years from now railroad locomotives will carry no fuel. Trains all over the country will be run by power conveyed by wire from a dozen great central plants located in the neighborhood of coal mines. There will be no smoke, no cinders, to make a journey by rail disagreeable." Thus Prof. Robert H. Fernald, expert in charge of the government fuel inquiry is quoted by Robert Franklin in the Technical World Magazine. It has been proved practicable, he says, by the help of gas-producers and gas engines, to convert the energy of coal into electricity and transmit it by wire over distances exceeding 250 miles. This means that trains could be run from a single central plant over 200,000 square miles—an area nearly four times that of the state of Illinois—and that ten or twelve such plants, located at or near mining centers, could furnish motive power for all the railroads in the United States. "Now that it is commercially possible to transmit electric power 250 miles or more," says Prof. Fernald, "the location of immense gas-producer plants at the mines, or within easy reach of them, must speedily follow. But it should not be supposed that this power will be utilized only by the railroads of the country. It will be supplied to factories, and employed for all sorts of industrial purposes in cities and towns, whose populations will be thus enabled to enjoy cleanliness and freedom from the tyranny of smoky chimneys." This is the introduction to a remarkable article in this magazine.

Several plans have been made to establish a national American university. The idea, recently expressed in a bill introduced into the house of representatives, is as old as the country. Washington, in his address to congress in 1890, urged the promotion of art and science, and recommended that congress consider "whether this desirable object will be best promoted by affording aids to seminaries of learning already established, by the institution of a national university, or by any other expedients." The question suggested by Washington has not been finally settled, although it has been answered in part by the growth of many colleges and universities throughout the land. In a country like ours of wide area there should be many great centers of education. It sometimes seems better to strengthen the colleges we have than to found new ones, but there is room for others. A national university might have special functions such as present institutions are not in position to discharge, and its official nature would make it a powerful influence in American higher education, which is now disorganized and uncertain in standard.

There have been from time to time many reported inventions of bullet-proof coats or undershirts; but some, how none ever seemed to meet a really adequate test. Now comes the story that a Russian colonel has devised a garment of this kind which is actually what is claimed. While the formula for construction is not given out, the announcement is made that the materials are three and a half times as hard as steel and are warranted to ward off a Mauser bullet fired from a high-power rifle. Still, it is not going to be easy to obtain or wear the bullet-proof coat. The garment is very costly and weighs five pounds, and a man trotting around in it must feel something like the armor-clad knights of old. But, asks the Troy Times, what are cost and weight compared to value as a life preserver? If the coat is truly bullet proof no doubt there are a good many rich and titled persons in Russia who would think the garment cheap at ten times the cost in money and discomfort.

Small boys who are afraid to go out into the streets to play lest they should get run over may be fired by the great hope that some day they will be president of the United States, but the rough-and-tumble kid has his eye fixed on a position as pitcher in the championship team of one of the big leagues. That appears to him to be a higher position than president or even floorwalker in a department store. As he pitches the tattered ball in the vacant lot his mind's eye wanders forward to the time when admiring multitudes will rise up to applaud his curves, meanwhile saving enough of their strength to throw pop bottles at his adversary of the rival team.

A dispatch says that Prince Vladimir Sergejevitch Kutuzoff and his wife, Warwara Tranovskaja Kutuzoff, of Russia, have gone to Doukhoboufsky. Note to printer: Please put the letters back in the alphabet after using.

Some men are bachelors and some are bigamists. Between the two is a class about which executive messages are never written, or against whom warrants are rarely issued. It must be a colorless life.

A Shrewd Preacher.

It is often easier to obtain favors from the pride than the charity of men. A shrewd preacher, after an eloquent charity sermon, said to his hearers:

"I am afraid from the sympathy displayed in your countenances that some of you may give too much. I caution you, therefore, that you should be just before you are generous, and wish you to understand that we desire no one who cannot pay his debts to put anything in the plate."

That collection was a rousing one.

Strategy.

"My lad," said the stern parent as he picked up the long white shingle, "this is going to hurt me more than it does you."

The bad boy grinned.
"It certainly will, pop, if you ain't keener," he chuckled; "I've got a dynamite cap in my back trousers pocket."

And after pa had vanished around the barn at a Lou Dillon clip the bad boy removed a turnip from his pocket, winked at the barnyard rooster and started on a fishing expedition.

Debt.

Debt does not seem to worry anyone at the present day. The average man borrows your money, spends it and forgets it. He is quite as happy in debt as out. If he can very conveniently pay, he may pay; but if to pay requires him to shorten his traces a little bit, or incommodes him in the slightest degree, he will never wipe out his obligation. There used to be a debtors' prison. It was a noble institution until captured by the vilest grafters, and had to be abolished on the score of humanity.—N. Y. Press.

Kimono Arrangement.

A woman who was trying on an elaborately embroidered kimono for the edification of her dearest friend was surprised and disconcerted to hear a cry of horror as she emerged from her dressing-room wrapped in the silken folds of the garment.

"Why, my dear," explained the friend, who had recently returned from a trip to Japan, "you gave me the most awful shock I've had in a long time. Don't you see you've got the right side of that thing fastened over the left?"

"Well, what of it?" asked the other.
"What of it?" echoed the visitor.
"Why, just this: In the country where these garments constitute the conventional female dress there is but one occasion upon which they may be draped in the way you have yours."

"And that?"
"That"—in a tone of deep solemnity—"is when the wearer is lying in her coffin. At all other times the kimono is arranged with the left side over the right—like American men's coats, you know, and just the opposite of women's."

Death and Tired Legs.

Alpine climbing, long walking tours and similar fatiguing recreations may be suitable enough for those who keep in training all the year round but are disastrous for those whose ordinary exercise consists of a short daily walk.

I have often thought that the reason of the many mountaineering accidents which we read of lies in the inability of the muscles of the legs to retain that steadiness and firmness which climbing demands and which are soon lost in the absence of strenuous practice or in those who have never followed the sport seriously.—Cassell's Magazine.

"Hearing" of "Deaf Mutes."

Contrary to the general belief, nearly all deaf people, according to a foreign scientific magazine, can hear some sound, but, unlike the normal ear, the deaf ear hears only very deep sounds.

It happens that some of the lower animals hear only deep sounds; this is to be concluded from the fact that they do not seem to notice any other. The spider is of this class; since it does not possess hearing organs, it must get the sound by a process akin to touch. If this be the fact, could not deaf-mutes develop the power to "hear" more than they have heard up to the present time, asks the writer in the above magazine.

Largest Fresh Water Dry Dock.

Lorain, O., is boasting of the largest fresh water dry dock in the world. While there is something of a conflict in the assertion, it appears to be amply borne out by the facts. The dock is 745 feet long and 125 feet wide, which is within a few feet of the dimensions of the new dry dock at the League island navy yard.

How Bess Won Her Wager

By Clara H. Holmes

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Bess Barnes and her brother John were standing on the porch in the clear winter sunshine when Abner Boyden drove by.

He lifted his hat and the smile he gave Bess made the color flame in her cheeks. Nothing was said until the little crimson cutter rounded the bend in the road and was lost to sight.

"He might have invited you to share that lap robe, Sis," teased John. "He's a fine fellow if he had ever learned to talk."

"Oh, I don't know! He talks—sometimes," answered Bess, laughing.

"You don't say! Well, you are the only one that knows it."

"It would appear better if some others said less," replied she.

"Oh, come now, don't be personal. I only mean that he will not give a direct answer, just plain yes, or no. He'll get around it some way."

Bess laughed again. "I'll admit that he is funny, but I bet that I could make him say yes," said she confidently.

"Oh, nonsense! You ain't so many! The boys have tried all kinds of ways. He always appears to be giving an answer, but when you simmer it down you've got nothing but a supposition."

Bess looked so aggressively confident as she tapped the floor with the toe of her slipper, the saucy dimples coming and going in her smooth cheek, that John said testily: "That's all right, but I'll bet you a silk dress against a 50 cent necktie that you can't get either yes or no—plain, direct yes or no, mind you—out of him, Miss Bess."

"All right, I take the wager," replied she.

Bess did not see Abner for some time after this, but one clear, sparkling night there was a spelling school some ten miles away.

The great sled with its wagon box full of clean oat straw was well filled when they called for her. Her heart beat a happy tattoo when Abner in lifting her into the sleigh gave her a sly embrace.

Bess had forgotten all about her wager until it was recalled to her mind by a jeering look from John.

"What reason has John to make game of him? It isn't a bit nice," she thought angrily. She entirely ignored her part of the transaction.

The spelling school was one of those old-fashioned affairs where they chose sides and spelled down. Abner and Bess had been among the first called, and were the last to go down. Bess tripped on one letter, and Abner, taking from her lips, spelled it correctly.

Bess sat down half vexed. "Oh, I knew it well enough, but you were in such a hurry you didn't give me a fair show," she said petulantly.

Abner looked at her gravely. "It wasn't very much of a triumph, I am inclined to think; I believe that perhaps you are the better speller, every one makes mistakes at times, and a single letter—"

The reply was so characteristic that Bess laughed, quickly restored to good humor, until John leaned over her shoulder and whispered in her ear: "Check."

She looked at him angrily, and in the same low tone, said: "You are just horrid, John Barnes!"

As they were starting for home Abner again lifted her into the sleigh, and took his seat beside her. The horses, fractious at best, had stood in the open shed until they were well high unmanageable, and the driver was unused to four horses.

"It rather looks like we might have a spill," said Abner. "I really think I will be compelled to hold you very close," his lips very near her cheek, and his arm around her waist.

The runners creaked on the frosty snow, the stars glittered in the dark vault above, and the air was like elixir. It was a night to make the senses run riot with the very joy of living. One commenced to sing and all joined in with more noise than music.

"Oh, shut up!" called the driver nervously. The horses were plunging and curvetting, more than willing to be frightened.

"I almost think I will have to hold you closer, it really looks as if possibly some one might get hurt before we reach home," whispered Abner, giving Bess an extra hug.

"Would you care—much?" whispered Bess in the same low tone, her evil genius at this moment recalling her foolish wager.

"I think you know—I hope you know," this time touching her cheek with his lips.

"Ah—em!" came John's voice mockingly over her other shoulder.

Abner hastily withdrew his arm and neither he nor Bess spoke again during the remainder of the ride. Abner lifted her from the sleigh, merely saying good-night at the door.

Bess was furious with John. "You thought you were smart, making your ill-bred comments so that he could hear them. He'll never speak to me again," she stormed.

"Is it ill-bred because he heard them? I think it is because you have lost that silk dress," tantalized John.

"I never want to hear anything about the dress. I'm ashamed to think I'd stoop to such a thing!" Bess was half crying. John whistled, and walked away.

A week later old Sylvia's grandson came to tell them that Mammy could not come for her usual Saturday work as she had the rheumatism, and after much beating about the bush he begged for some groceries, as they were almost without food. John was away and there was no one else about, and what little 'Rastus could carry would not last them over Sunday.

"I'll go with him, mother. I can carry one basket and he can take another."

The walking was good until they reached the woods, but once within their depths the snow was but little trodden, and the feet sank with every step. But for her stubborn pride Bess would have turned back. As it was the sun was setting when they reached the cabin.

Bess dropped exhausted into an old splint rocker in Aunt Sylvia's kitchen. "Fo' de Lord, Miss Bess, why fo' you come?" said she.

"Because I knew you needed the things," answered Bess.

"Shore nuff, but not so dre'ful as that."

Bess arranged for Auntie's comfort, made 'Rastus understand what he was to do for his grandmother and started for home.

It was quite dark beneath the low armed trees, which groaned and swayed in the wind in an appalling manner. The soft snow clogged her feet, and her heart beat heavily with fear. She sank down on a snow-covered log to regain her breath. "Oh, dear! I wish I hadn't come," she half sobbed.

All at once the woods seemed full of a grinding noise, and through the underbrush came a horrible crashing. Bess tried to run but her limbs refused to support her. From among the trees leaped a great tawny body straight at her. She covered her eyes with one cry of fear, the next she knew a voice was saying: "Down, Prince! Down!" Then some one's arms were round her and a dearly beloved voice was saying: "Bess! My darling! How came you here?"

Cuddled under the warm lap robe explanation was easy. At its conclusion Abner said: "How fortunate that I took the short cut for home. I have been gone for two weeks. You would certainly have frozen to death."

"I thought you were angry with me," sobbed Bess.

"Why would I be angry with you?" he asked.

"You didn't speak after John was so horrid rude," she replied vaguely.

He drew her closer within the fold of his arm. "It would take something more than John's teasing to make me angry at the—my little—wife. Is it to be that, Bess?"

She lifted her lips, and he seemed perfectly content with the answer.

When, a month later, Abner said: "Yes," very firmly and distinctly before a minister of the gospel, John quietly laid among the wedding gifts a box containing a handsome silk dress. On a little card was written: "Fairly won, and cheerfully paid."

Holland's Riches.

"When it comes to coffee, sugar, indigo, spices and tobacco, all the nations of the world have to take off their hats to the little kingdom of Holland," said Mr. Karl van Valkenberg of Amsterdam at the Stafford.

"Once in every two weeks the Netherlands Company sells more coffee than all the rest of the world's markets combined. This fortunate situation comes about through the ownership of our island colonies. Sumatra, which is almost 30 times as large as Holland, sends its tobacco crop to the home government. Java, tremendously larger, is also ours, and to it we are indebted for our coffee. Borneo, which would make a dozen of us, is our source of coal supply, and from the islands of Banca and Billiton we get vast quantities of tin. So you see that Holland's riches come largely from her insular possessions. Amsterdam and Antwerp cut the diamonds of the world."—Baltimore American.

"Say 'Uncle,' Durn Ye."

Jacob Hope, the pet stock dealer of Philadelphia, was showing a reporter one of his phonograph-trained parrots, a truly marvelous bird.

"This parrot isn't like the 'Uncle' one," said Mr. Hope. "There was a Nicetown man who had a parrot that he once commanded to say 'Uncle' in front of a roomful of guests. The parrot could say 'Uncle' beautifully, yet though the man pleaded with it nearly an hour, it remained as silent as the grave."

"Then, enraged, he snatched up the obstinate parrot, ran with it to the chicken coop, and, half twisting its neck, threw it in among the hens."

"After his guests were gone he regretted his cruelty. He went sadly back to the chicken coop to see if the poor parrot was dead."

"Opening the door, he frowned. Ten of his 12 prize Plymouth Rocks lay corpses on the floor, and the parrot was standing on the eleventh, twisting her neck, and screaming:

"Say 'Uncle,' durn ye; say 'Uncle!'" —Philadelphia Record.

HOUSE WORK

Thousands of American women in our homes are daily sacrificing their lives to duty.

In order to keep the home neat and pretty, the children well dressed and tidy, women overdo. A female weakness of displacement is often brought on and they suffer in silence, drifting along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have help to overcome the pains and aches which daily make life a burden.

It is to these faithful women that comes as a boon and a blessing, as it did to Mrs. F. Ellsworth, of Mayville, N. Y., and to Mrs. W. P. Boyd, of Beaver Falls, Pa., who say:

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

"I was not able to do my own work, owing to the female trouble from which I suffered. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me wonderfully, and I am so well that I can do as big a day's work as I ever did. I wish every sick woman would try it."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.
